County board meets goals for job training

The San Bernardino County Workplace Investment Board has met or exceeded the performance measures set by the state for providing job training services, the agency said in a statement.

The board is a made up of private industry representatives and public partners appointed by the Board of Supervisors. It operates through the county's Economic Development Agency and Workforce Development Department and operates three Employment Resource Centers.

About 32,700 residents used these services in the last year.
